You think Jack has some unresolved issues?

I guess because I won't respond to his insane emails he now has brought you into the mix.

Looking at the time it was sent I would assume he was pretty drunk or drugged...

The previous ones have come in the early am like this one.

It should go without saying that the accusations are false. The only thing close is that Lynsey emailed and then called me about three weeks ago. The last time she called she wanted to know if she could get her job back, to which I declined. A few days later an email similar to this one came.

The last email he sent he also included pictures of himself and a blond girl, I assumed he was attempting to open up dialogue, I did not respond to that one either.

I guess I should be flattered that he seems to be jealous of an, overweight, grey haired, worn out, old man..
